

CHRIS STESKY/THE RECORDER AND TIMES

Valerie Kines, third from left, received a $15,000 US donation cheque recently for the local Habitat for Humanity project by a Presbyterian church congregation in Charlotte, North Carolina. It was delivered by members of Myers Park church's youth group, who were staying in Brockville, at First Presbyterian Church's invitation, while helping out at small rural churches in June. Here, Jan Scott Swetenburg presents the cheque "on behalf of our church and the willing hands of our youth group." Also shown in the photo, from left: Bert Headrick, clerk of session at First Presbyterian; Rev. David Jones, First Presbyterian; Kines, spokesperson for the project; Swetenburg; Lydia Pharr, Myers Park student leader; Charles Monroe, member of Charlotte's Habitat for Humanity organization, which will be building 52 homes there this year alone; and Andrew Lopez, student leader.
